

Climate deniers have much in common with Joe Camel

Monday, October 14, 2013 by: Jay Jochnowitz, Editorial page editor

- Comments\(4\)
- Email
- Print
-  Share 0
-
-
-

Just as the tobacco industry tried to discredit research proving smoking causes cancer, the fossil fuel industry is “using pseudo-science and cherry-picked data” as a smoke screen to conceal scientific evidence that pollution is causing global warming, says Dan Becker and James Gerstenzang in USA Today.

Categories: Climate change, Energy, Tobacco

Tags: climate change | deniers | global warming | junk science